

ImmuniD, www.immunid.com, is a biotechnology company offering innovative diagnostics solutions based on the novel "immune forecast" concept. It was created in 2005 as a spin-off of the CEA Grenoble, and is an active member of Lyonbiopôle and the CLARA canceropole. To further our activities we are currently seeking a:

Medical and clinical development director
(Based in Grenoble)

I – THE POSITION:

To assist the company's growth, you will join the board of directors where you will contribute to defining the strategy of and coordinating innovative clinical studies in both French and international markets. You will lead a team involved in managing clinical projects.

To do so, you will:

- Supervise international multicenter studies linked to the company's activity and development,
- Contribute to designing products and kits for medical and pharmaceutical use,
- Be responsible for the follow-up and scientific, technical and regulatory quality of the clinical research projects,
- Develop the company's contacts and scientific partnerships with the medical community, opinion leaders, national and international bodies,
- Guarantee the medical credibility of trials to investors, the authorities and health-care professionals,
- Participate in symposia, national and international conferences,
- Monitor scientific output in your field of activity.

II – CANDIDATE PROFILE:

Ideally you are a medical doctor or pharmacist, specialized in immunology and diagnostic kits. You have 5 - 8 years' experience in biomedical research as a clinical project leader or medical director, with activities involving coordinating and monitoring multicenter clinical trials in Europe and the USA to validate diagnostic, prognostic or predictive tests with therapeutic efficacy.

You are familiar with the scientific regulations in terms of clinical research and are capable of contributing to medical information and guaranteeing the placement of ImmuniD's products.

You have developed scientific partnerships within the international scientific community. The strength of your convictions and your negotiating capacities mean that you are known to the health authorities and KOLs. You speak fluent English.

You are a hands-on manager with very good communication skills; you train and aid your collaborators in line with the company's dynamics.

Your human qualities, your knowledge of Immunology, your curiosity and creativity will help you to integrate our scientific team, and to challenge it. You are enthusiastic, dynamic and have a clear idea of what constitutes results. You have a passion for innovation, and you want to devote yourself to an actively growing company.

Please send your application to our human resource management advisors by e-mail to: annonce@alenys.fr or jobs@immunid.com